

Linguistics and Grammar Teaching

The interdepartmental research programme “Linguistics and Grammar Teaching”, which started in the academic year 2017-18, evolved out of the collaboration of Michalis Georgiamentis, Department of English Language and Literature and Angeliki Tsokoglou, Department of German Language and Literature, on the basis of their shared research interests.

The programme aims at establishing collaborations with research centres / institutes abroad which are engaged with the relation between linguistics and teaching as well as establishing a research lab / centre in Greece for research and education purposes. Furthermore, it aims at organising scientific workshops / conferences, educational seminars and meetings for primary and secondary school teachers as well as developing open access educational materials for both pupils and school teachers.
